Climate Investing in Africa: Opportunities for Green Growth and Sustainability

Tackling climate change is of vital importance for Africa. The nature of the fight against climate change is complex and can come at a cost. As Africa, we must be innovative and imagine creative climate-friendly ways African economies can continue to blossom. One non-negotiable element towards realising this goal will have to be much more substantial and sustainable financing than it is today.