

State of Africa's Energy Transition: Seizing Opportunities for Clean Energy Development

Africa's rapid economic growth has created a surging demand for energy across key sectors, including mining, telecommunications, information technology, transport, logistics, and healthcare. As a result, the need for clean energy has witnessed exponential growth globally and regionally, with variations in demands across different regions.